

THE USBORNE INTERNET-LINKED

FIRST THOUSAND WORDS IN FRENCH

With Internet-linked pronunciation guide

This bright and amusing book provides a wealth of vocabulary-building opportunities for people of all ages who want to learn French. Stephen Cartwright's delightful pictures encourage association of the French word with the object, which will ensure effective long-term learning.

You can hear a French person saying every word in this book by visiting the Usborne Quicklinks Web site at www.usborne-quicklinks.com and typing in the keywords "1000 french".

There is a French/English word list at the back of the book for ready reference.

About Usborne Quicklinks

To access the Usborne Quicklinks Web site for this book, go to www.usborne-quicklinks.com

and enter the keywords "1000 french". There you can:

- listen to the first thousand words in French, read by a native French speaker
- print out some French picture puzzles for free
- find links to other useful Web sites about France and the French language

Listening to the words

To hear the words in this book, you will need your Web browser (e.g. Internet Explorer or Netscape Navigator) and a programme that lets you play sound (such as RealPlayer® or Windows® Media Player). These programmes are free and, if you don't already have one of them, you can download them from Usborne Quicklinks.

Your computer also needs a sound card but most computers already have one of these.

Note for parents and guardians

Please ensure that your children read and follow the Internet safety guidelines displayed on the Usborne Quicklinks Web site.

The links in Usborne Quicklinks are regularly reviewed and updated. However, the content of a Web site may change at any time and Usborne Publishing is not responsible for the content on any Web site other than its own. We recommend that children are supervised while on the Internet, that they do not use Internet Chat Rooms, and that you use Internet filtering software to block unsuitable material. For more information, see the Net Help area on the Usborne Quicklinks Web site.

On every double page with pictures, there is a little yellow duck to look for. Can you find it?

About this book

This is a great book for anyone starting to learn French. You'll find it easy to learn new words by looking at the small, labelled pictures. Then you can practise the words by talking about the large central pictures. This book also has its own Usborne Quicklinks Web site where you can listen to all the French words, print out some French picture puzzles, and follow links to other fun and useful Web sites.

Masculine and feminine words

When you look at French words for things such as "table" or "man", you will see that they have le, la or l' in front of them. This is because all French words for things and people are either masculine or feminine. Le is the word for "the" in front of a masculine word, la is "the" in front of a feminine word, and you use l' in front of words that begin with "a", "e", "i", "o" or "u". In front of the words that are plural (more than one, such as "tables" or "men"), the French word for "the" is les.

All the labels in this book show words for things with le, la, l' or les. Always learn them with this little word.

Looking at French words

A few French words have accents. These are signs that are written over or under some letters. Usually they are over the letter "é", and they change the way you say the letter.

Saying French words

The best way to learn how to say French words is to listen to a French speaker and repeat what you hear. You can listen to all the words in this book on the Usborne Quicklinks Web site. For more information on how to do this, see the page on the left. At the back of this book, there is also a word list with an easy pronunciation guide for each French word.

A computer is not essential

If you don't have access to the Internet, don't worry. This book is a complete and excellent French word book on its own.

Word list

In this list, you can find all the French words in this book. They are listed in alphabetical order. Next to each one, you can see its pronunciation (how to say it) in letters like this, and then its English translation.

Remember that French nouns (words for things) are either masculine or feminine (see page 3). In the list, each one has le, la, l' or les in front of it. These all mean "the". The words with le are masculine, those with la are feminine.

French nouns that begin with "a", "e", "i", "o" or "u", and many that begin with an "h", have l' in front of them. At the end, you will see (m) or (f) to show if the word is masculine or feminine. Plural nouns (a noun is plural if you are talking about more than one, for example "cats") have les in front. These are also followed by (m) or (f).

About French pronunciation

Read the pronunciation as if it were an English word, but try to remember the following points about how French words are said:

- the French j is said like the "s" in "treasure"
- when you see (n) or (m) in a pronunciation, you should barely say the "n" or "m"; say the letter that is before it through your nose, as if you had a cold
- the French r is made at the back of the throat and sounds a little like gargling
- the French u is not like any sound in English. It is a little like a cross between the "ew" of "few" and the "oo" of "food". To say it, round your lips to say "oo", then try to say "ee"; the pronunciations use the letters "ew" to show this sound
